

Transcript: giving the first injection

"I was, I wasn't nervous, I was my, I think my understanding was, after a couple of days I was like right, I'm a very organized person, okay let's do this. So I was very determined to get it right and get it right very soon. Because you know for me it's about getting it right so I could get him right so I could get him home, that was it.

I think what was really good was one of the nurses said look, she gave us a few needles, and said inject yourself. So we did. And I was just like oh, I can't even feel it"

"She says it like that, but I was , she said inject in your stomach and I was oh is it in yet?"

"But did it hurt?"

"No. But then when eventually once you stick it in you go oh"

'It reassured you that it wasn't so bad"

"Yeah, yeah"

"I understood that we needed to do this for him to live"